

COMING TO THE NAVAL REVIEW

ANSWERS RECEIVED FROM ALL THE NATIONS INVITED.

VESSELS THAT WILL PARTICIPATE—THE GREAT POWERS TO BE WELL REPRESENTED.

Washington, March 2.—The Navy Department has received answers from all the governments invited to participate in the great naval display in honor of the discovery of America, to be held in Hampton Roads and New York Harbor in April. In response to dispatches of inquiry from the State Department sent last Saturday to the five nations that had not acknowledged the invitation of the United States, three delegations and two acceptances have been received. Austria, Turkey and Greece (including Rumania and Servia) are obliged to decline the invitation to participate, the reason given in each case being that no vessels are available. Germany and Russia, the other two belligerent powers, accept.

Germany will send two armored cruisers Kaiserin Augusta and the Scudler. Russia will send a large fleet and will probably have the largest representation of any nation in the ceremonies. The Russian fleet will include the first-class armored cruisers Amiral Donatof and General Admiral, and the Corvette Rimda, with Vice-Admiral Kozanoff commanding. Two or three other vessels will leave Cronstadt when the ice melts. These will probably be the battleship Emperor Nicholas and the armored cruisers Sachsen and Pamintse Azova.

Great Britain has accepted the invitation, but the fleet has not been definitely selected. The flagship Blake and several vessels of the North Atlantic squadron will be present, and it is probable that one or two second-class cruisers will be sent over.

Ialty will send the cruisers Etna, Bauso and Dogali, and perhaps the transport Eridano, under Rear-Admiral Magagni.

Spain will be represented by the cruisers Reina Regente and Infanta Isabel, and the gunboat Espana, The Duke of Veragua and his suite will sail for America on the American line steamer New York on April 8.

France has virtually accepted the invitation to participate, but no vessels have yet been designated. Brazil will send the ironclad Aquidabam and the cruisers República and Presidente. From the Netherlands will come the ironclad De Ruyter.

Switzerland has returned a definite answer to the invitation, because of the absence of the President and Cabinet, but it has no vessels to send, while Uruguay has declined on the ground that no vessels are available.

ADMIRAL GHERARDI'S PLANS.

HE MAKES A GOOD SUGGESTION TO MASTERS OF VESSELS IN THE BAY.

Rear Admiral Bancroft Gherardi, who assumed command of the United States Naval review fleet on Wednesday, was hard at work yesterday in the cabin of the flagship Baltimore, putting the finishing touches on his preparations for the review. When asked if he would permit the programme to be copied, he said: "It is my intention to give to the public every bit of information that I can in connection with the review, but it would be a breach of official courtesy to permit it to see the Secretary of the Navy for him to act upon, and it should be left to him to give it out when he decides which of the two schemes proposed shall be approved. It contemplates either a review by one vessel, upon which shall be the President and other officials, with all of the other vessels at anchor in a double line along the North River and down into the Lower Bay; or a passing in review of all of the vessels. The latter plan would be, no doubt, most satisfactory to the public, especially that portion which could not get out in the bay to see the entire big fleet that may be expected. But whichever plan is approved, you cannot be too emphatic in insisting that, to make the affair successful, the harbor must be kept clear of all obstructions to the free movement of the fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

The following is a copy of the order issued by Admiral Gherardi, one of which was sent to Rear-Admiral John G. Walker, Washington, and another to Washington to be forwarded to Rear-Admiral A. E. K. Benham, commanding the South Atlantic Station:

U. S. Flagship Baltimore,
New York Navy Yard, March 1, 1893.

General Order, No. 1.

In compliance with Navy Department's Special Order No. 21, dated Jan. 1, 1893, to have this day assumed command of the United States fleet for the Naval Review authorized by the Act of Congress, approved April 25, 1860. My personal staff will consist of Captain W. R. Brigeman, chief of staff; Lieutenant W. P. Potter, flag lieutenant; Lieutenant Rodolph Hunt, secretary.

The fleet will be composed of the "Squadron for Special Service," the naval force of the South Atlantic Station, the naval force of the North Atlantic Station, and such other vessels as may hereafter be attached to it. The Commander-in-Chief of the South Atlantic Station and the Commander-in-Chief of the North Atlantic Station will, on receipt of this order, report to me by letter addressed to this ship, stating the location and condition of the ships of their commands, and the work required to prepare them for the service in the review fleet.

This order will be put together with the Departmental Order No. 21, on the quarter-deck of each ship immediately on its receipt.

BAN-RIGHT GHERARDI,
Rear-Admiral, U. S. Navy.

Commanding United States Naval Review Fleet.

A PORTUGUESE CORVETTE COMING HERE.

Lisbon, March 2.—The Portuguese corvette Alfonso Albuquerque, commanded by Captain Amavado, ex-Minister of Marine, will go to New York to take part in the great naval review.

THE BAPTIST SOCIAL UNION MEETS.

The Baptist Social Union of Manhattan Island held a regular meeting last evening at the St. Denys Hotel. The topic for discussion was "Christian Patriotism, Its Development and Aim." The first address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur. Among others present were James B. Colgate, Edward H. Harper, L. H. King, B. M. Newland and J. W. Perry. Wendell C. Phillips presided.

A GOOD HOME FOR THE OLD.

The managers of the Home for Aged and Indigent Females, Amsterdam-ave., and One-hundred-and-fourth-st., gave a reception yesterday afternoon to the many friends of the institution. A short musical programme was carried out, and an address was delivered by the Rev. J. Baldwin Shaw, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church. After the address the people present were invited to inspect the home. The reception was the first given since the formal opening of the house nine years ago. Those who attended it and saw the bright, sunny rooms with their white-haired, gentle-faced occupants, realized that the managers of the home had made the task of growing old gracefully an easy one for the inmates. There are seventy-eight outside pensioners of the home. The institution now has eighty-seven inmates, and is under the management of the following officers: First director, Mrs. A. A. Church; second director, F. V. Hamlin, recording secretary, Miss M. G. Janaway; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. F. Fowler; treasurer, William H. McDonough; Thomas Morris, assistant secretary, and a man or more other disconsolate servants of the city are to be present.

THE YOUNG FORGER GOES SCOT FREE.

Dawes E. Sturges, the youth who tried to utter a forged check for $80,000, is not to be punished for his crime. He pleaded guilty to forgery, but was allowed to withdraw the plea. Yesterday Judge Cowing, in General Session, discharged him on his own recognizance. This was in accordance with the recommendation of District Attorney Neidl, who said that, in view of Sturges' youth, his absurd attempt to negotiate the check and of his being under the influence of another person, he (Mr. Neidl) kindly believed that the defendant had the gullily knavish edge which constitutes a crime.

The youth is well-connected, his father being Apolito Sturges, of No. 90, East Tenth-st., and his mother, Mrs. A. B. Wetmore, register, Mrs. W. Wheeler Smith. The managers are: Mrs. A. C.

Cheney, Mrs. R. S. Elv, Miss K. S. Harriman, Miss W. Miller, Miss E. Nixon, Miss H. Outlton, Miss E. C. Rogers, Mrs. G. C. Whelehan and the officers of the home ex-officio.

A CHANCE FOR THE MANUFACTURES.

E. R. BLISS TELLS OF ARTICLES NEEDED IN CUBA

—THE SUGAR TRADE WITH CHINA.

Edward R. Bliss, an exporter of sugar from Cienfuegos, Cuba, registered at the Victoria Hotel Wednesday, Cienfuegos is about 350 miles northwest of Santiago, and has a population of about 32,000, half of whom, Mr. Bliss says, are English-speaking people.

"Our commerce with the United States is extensive," said Mr. Bliss to a reporter of the Tribune, "sugar being the chief article of export. Every year thousands of tons are shipped to this country, and owing to cheap labor we are able to make for profit when the price of the raw material is not too low. Cienfuegos is in the midst of the sugar-cane district, and many more thousand tons of the product would be sent to North America if the transportation facilities were better. The cost of shipping by steamer to this country is so high that we cannot afford to make shipments if the prices obtained for sugar are not good. The price of raw sugar in Cuba was so low last year that on many of the plantations the planters could not afford to cut the cane, and it was allowed to rot. The commerce between the United States and Cuba is not large enough.

The exporters here should look toward the island more than they do, for there are thousands of articles here that could be exchanged for sugar at an immense profit. Improved farm machinery is also much needed on the island.

The farmers there use a rude crooked steel scythe like what the Egyptians worked with 2,600 years ago. Butter is rarely found in the Matanzas district, the cattle being too poorly fed to furnish milk that contains cream. Butter margarine is made in this country is found in many of the farmhouses.

"These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."

"My poor Jack! I sent it over for him. He stood looking at the wild rovers, his heart drawn out, and at the invitation of call from the leader he was frightened. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

The executive taxation is one of the greatest evils of the island, and it is doing more harm than can be imagined. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

CONFIDENCE IN REDMOND'S PARTY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HIS SUPPORTERS IN THIS CITY.

The Central Council of the Supporters of the Independent Irish party, of which John E. Redmond is the leader, met last night at No. 103 East Thirty-second-st., where the Dublin Club has its rooms, to take action in reference to the Home Rule bill before the British Parliament. The meeting was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion exhibited by those present. Edward O'Flaherty presided, and H. G. Bannon was secretary. After Mr. O'Flaherty had read a telegram from Colorado, which said that the Legislature of that State had unanimously passed a resolution favoring amnesty for Irish political prisoners, William H. Kearns, president of Parnell Branch, Irish National League, offered resolutions which declared that the best thing for those who had the welfare of Ireland at heart to do in regard to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill was to wait with confidence the decision of the Independent Irish party regarding the bill, and to contribute to support the party that had so gallantly upheld the political principles of that fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."

"My poor Jack! I sent it over for him. He stood looking at the wild rovers, his heart drawn out, and at the invitation of call from the leader he was frightened. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

CONFIDENCE IN REDMOND'S PARTY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HIS SUPPORTERS IN THIS CITY.

The Central Council of the Supporters of the Independent Irish party, of which John E. Redmond is the leader, met last night at No. 103 East Thirty-second-st., where the Dublin Club has its rooms, to take action in reference to the Home Rule bill before the British Parliament. The meeting was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion exhibited by those present. Edward O'Flaherty presided, and H. G. Bannon was secretary. After Mr. O'Flaherty had read a telegram from Colorado, which said that the Legislature of that State had unanimously passed a resolution favoring amnesty for Irish political prisoners, William H. Kearns, president of Parnell Branch, Irish National League, offered resolutions which declared that the best thing for those who had the welfare of Ireland at heart to do in regard to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill was to wait with confidence the decision of the Independent Irish party regarding the bill, and to contribute to support the party that had so gallantly upheld the political principles of that fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."

"My poor Jack! I sent it over for him. He stood looking at the wild rovers, his heart drawn out, and at the invitation of call from the leader he was frightened. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

CONFIDENCE IN REDMOND'S PARTY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HIS SUPPORTERS IN THIS CITY.

The Central Council of the Supporters of the Independent Irish party, of which John E. Redmond is the leader, met last night at No. 103 East Thirty-second-st., where the Dublin Club has its rooms, to take action in reference to the Home Rule bill before the British Parliament. The meeting was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion exhibited by those present. Edward O'Flaherty presided, and H. G. Bannon was secretary. After Mr. O'Flaherty had read a telegram from Colorado, which said that the Legislature of that State had unanimously passed a resolution favoring amnesty for Irish political prisoners, William H. Kearns, president of Parnell Branch, Irish National League, offered resolutions which declared that the best thing for those who had the welfare of Ireland at heart to do in regard to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill was to wait with confidence the decision of the Independent Irish party regarding the bill, and to contribute to support the party that had so gallantly upheld the political principles of that fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."

"My poor Jack! I sent it over for him. He stood looking at the wild rovers, his heart drawn out, and at the invitation of call from the leader he was frightened. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

CONFIDENCE IN REDMOND'S PARTY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HIS SUPPORTERS IN THIS CITY.

The Central Council of the Supporters of the Independent Irish party, of which John E. Redmond is the leader, met last night at No. 103 East Thirty-second-st., where the Dublin Club has its rooms, to take action in reference to the Home Rule bill before the British Parliament. The meeting was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion exhibited by those present. Edward O'Flaherty presided, and H. G. Bannon was secretary. After Mr. O'Flaherty had read a telegram from Colorado, which said that the Legislature of that State had unanimously passed a resolution favoring amnesty for Irish political prisoners, William H. Kearns, president of Parnell Branch, Irish National League, offered resolutions which declared that the best thing for those who had the welfare of Ireland at heart to do in regard to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill was to wait with confidence the decision of the Independent Irish party regarding the bill, and to contribute to support the party that had so gallantly upheld the political principles of that fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."

"My poor Jack! I sent it over for him. He stood looking at the wild rovers, his heart drawn out, and at the invitation of call from the leader he was frightened. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

CONFIDENCE IN REDMOND'S PARTY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HIS SUPPORTERS IN THIS CITY.

The Central Council of the Supporters of the Independent Irish party, of which John E. Redmond is the leader, met last night at No. 103 East Thirty-second-st., where the Dublin Club has its rooms, to take action in reference to the Home Rule bill before the British Parliament. The meeting was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion exhibited by those present. Edward O'Flaherty presided, and H. G. Bannon was secretary. After Mr. O'Flaherty had read a telegram from Colorado, which said that the Legislature of that State had unanimously passed a resolution favoring amnesty for Irish political prisoners, William H. Kearns, president of Parnell Branch, Irish National League, offered resolutions which declared that the best thing for those who had the welfare of Ireland at heart to do in regard to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill was to wait with confidence the decision of the Independent Irish party regarding the bill, and to contribute to support the party that had so gallantly upheld the political principles of that fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."

"My poor Jack! I sent it over for him. He stood looking at the wild rovers, his heart drawn out, and at the invitation of call from the leader he was frightened. It has taken about all the ambition for work out of the natives, and it is only a question of time when a radical change must take place, or there will be a bloody revolution."

CONFIDENCE IN REDMOND'S PARTY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HIS SUPPORTERS IN THIS CITY.

The Central Council of the Supporters of the Independent Irish party, of which John E. Redmond is the leader, met last night at No. 103 East Thirty-second-st., where the Dublin Club has its rooms, to take action in reference to the Home Rule bill before the British Parliament. The meeting was remarkable for the unanimity of opinion exhibited by those present. Edward O'Flaherty presided, and H. G. Bannon was secretary. After Mr. O'Flaherty had read a telegram from Colorado, which said that the Legislature of that State had unanimously passed a resolution favoring amnesty for Irish political prisoners, William H. Kearns, president of Parnell Branch, Irish National League, offered resolutions which declared that the best thing for those who had the welfare of Ireland at heart to do in regard to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill was to wait with confidence the decision of the Independent Irish party regarding the bill, and to contribute to support the party that had so gallantly upheld the political principles of that fleet, and it is hoped that captains of tugs and other vessels will have enough pride to keep clear of the route to be laid out for this fleet, so that we shall not have a repetition of the failure of the Columbus naval parade last October. Everybody should work with an earnest purpose to make the affair successful in every way."

These farmhouses are curiously constructed buildings," added Mr. Bliss. "Each one of them suggests a small fort. Every Cuban subjects his neighbor, and the houses are built to withstand a siege. They are of stone, with an open court in the centre. Every window has two bars, and both windows and doors are bullet-proof. Such precautions against an invasion seems to be unnecessary, for I never heard of any trouble among the natives. Probably the precaution is to invite my horse to come and join them."</